ABSTRACT

A system and method that enables broadcasting of data in packets across a network using network coding is described. This system and method enables a network to broadcast information in packets without full knowledge of the network's topology. Further, it enables broadcasting of data in packets with a low probability of failure.